Other tax forms can show dividends, interest payments, government payments and more. Independent contractors are treated very differently from employees for tax purposes. For one thing, no taxes are withheld from your pay. Instead of having their tax withheld, workers must pay estimated taxes four times per year directly to the IRS and their state tax agency see below. Some deductions available to workers may not be taken by employees. Your taxes will consist of income taxes, and Social Security and Medicare taxes also called self-employment taxes when paid by workers. The vast majority of workers are sole proprietors. A sole proprietorship is a one-owner business. The business owner proprietor personally owns all of the assets of the business and controls its operation. Instead, you must report the income you earn or losses you incur on your own personal tax return, IRS Form , which is due each year by April If you earn a profit, the money is added to any other income you have. Even if you never receive a tax form, you must report your payments on your tax return. The new tax law provides some relief for pass-through small businesses, which may net out to a lower tax rate. Use this form to list all your business income and deductible expenses. Sole proprietors are not employees of their proprietorships; they are business owners. Yet, sole proprietors do have to pay self-employment taxes. This includes Social Security and Medicare taxes on net self-employment income. The Social Security tax is a flat There are two Medicare tax rates: All income above the ceiling is taxed at a 3. Note that workers and employees are each entitled to Social Security and Medicare benefits, but independent contractors must pay twice as much Social Security and Medicare taxes as do employees. Your business income and self-employment taxes must be prepaid four times a year in the form of estimated taxes see below. New Hampshire and Tennessee impose income taxes on dividend and interest income only. Most states charge a percentage of the income shown on your federal income tax return. In most states, you have to prepay your state income taxes during the year in the form of estimated taxes. These are usually paid at the same time you pay your federal estimated taxes. Tax Deductions for Workers You only need to pay income and self-employment tax on your net business income. This is the income you have left over after you subtract all of your deductible business expenses from the total amount you earned from your design business during the year. Business deductions are quite valuable. You may deduct any expense that is: Outside and home office expenses Local travel expenses Equipment and other long-term property Software and online service subscriptions Supplies.
