Here is our Review of the Top 10 Alto Saxophones for 1. The Yamaha corporation is based in Japan and offers an enormous list of products and services. Easily one of the biggest companies in the world and a household name. Their musical instruments are known for their quality and style and cover countless categories like guitar and bass, drums , violins for beginners , brass, and woodwind. Their pianos and keyboards , in particular, are very famous and are known the world over for being innovative and of the highest quality. It sports a professional and elegant design and robust build, there really is a quality feel throughout this saxophone that you would expect from a company like Yamaha. It also boasts superb intonation and is wonderfully lightweight and simple to play making it absolutely perfect for beginners and students. This saxophone is regarded as one of the top entry level models that money can buy. It is highly responsive and very easy to play with free flowing keys and a great sound. Another great feature is the Yamaha 4C mouthpiece which is a quality bit of kit in its own right. As mentioned above it is elegantly designed and has a beautiful class golden lacquer finish. Accessory wise it comes with a great case which is rugged and generously padded for maximum protection. The case also features backpack style straps for easy and convenient transportation of your sax. It ticks all the boxes in terms of what to look for in a student saxophone with the added peace of mind that it bears the Yamaha brand name. He sadly passed away in at the age of 81 however his great name lives on through the equally great horns of the P. This company is the epitome of class, high quality, professionalism and elegant craftsmanship of the highest caliber. In fact, during manufacture, a single sax may be hammered as many as times by a technician, an absolutely staggering number which highlights the level of pride and professionalism present at P. The Rolled tone hole feature is a standout, they are rolled over after being drawn from the body resulting in an absolutely unrivaled tone resonance. The bell is enlarged to accommodate one of the warmest, most robust sounds of any alto saxophone there is. A beautiful construction consisting of a Super VI neck, gorgeous golden lacquer finish and on the bell and bow you will find wonderful hand engraving. This series of saxophones also come in 3 other gorgeous lacquer finishes - vintage dark, cognac and raw brass. All of which will give your sound something a little bit different. The level of pride and workmanship that goes into P. Mauriat products really is something to behold. Keeping costs down is all well and fine, however, it is important to ensure you are still getting a decent quality product that is worth your while purchasing in the first place. This alto saxophone has been marketed as a beginner alto saxophone but in actual fact, it is equally suited to intermediate level players. It boasts a solid brass construction and is surprisingly elegant and durable for the price. It is lightweight and assembly is very easy making it ideal for younger musicians. Also, it has a real easy playing feel with forgiving fingerings and a very nice warm and resonating sound. The New Professional comes with a very impressive range of accessories and gear. There is also cork grease, a reed, an aglet, strap and much more again making it a great choice for younger players. This saxophones packaging is great. Similar to our sentiments above it comes in a surprisingly impressive condition with needle springs in place, pads evenly seated and no leaks present. One of the common fears among players when opting for lower end horns is the trouble they can sometimes have hitting the full note range. However, that does not seem to be a problem with this product with E flat through to F sharp resonating full, warm and clear. One suggestion we do have with this alto saxophone is that you may want to consider purchasing and upgraded mouthpiece should you decide on this sax. The one that comes with the New Professional will do the job however it is often a good idea to buy a higher end piece with lower end saxophones to really bring out the full sound. Ideal for beginners or intermediate players on a budget. They hold themselves to ruthless quality standards with every single one of their saxophones being thoroughly tested and examined at their overseas factories and also at their LA distribution center upon arrival in the United States. Their alto saxophones are handcrafted with pride and precision and are approved by instructor bodies around the globe for use in solo, band and orchestra capacities.

Upon starting Cecilio the founders believed there was a gap in the market for quality horns at affordable prices. They have since then established their company with this ethos at the forefront of everything they do. The Mendini is ideal for beginners yet also suitable for accomplished players. It is pitched at E flat with a high F sharp and boasts an impressive construction. It has a ribbed build and high-quality stainless steel tone boosters. The low B flat spatula keys have been designed in a tilted style making it exceptionally easy to play and wonderfully simple for new saxophonists to achieve a great sound. This alto saxophone comes with a whole host of accessories, again making it perfect for beginners. These saxophones extras consist of a highly durable hard shell case, neck strap, 10x 2. Also as a bonus, Cecilio have thrown in a D tuner and a pocket book. The warranty of on the Mendini is for 1 year covering manufacturing defects. This really is a great alto saxophone that is without a doubt a must buy for beginners. They have been releasing fantastic horns for over 15 years now and their products are famous for their great craftsmanship and affordable price tags. The RBAS really is an impressive alto saxophone and is full of great features. It boasts an RND relaxed neck design neck, bar mounted keys, an elegantly designed brass body and brass keys that are joyfully easy to play. The high range is F sharp and it sports a C sharp - B flat connected table key and hardened steel springs for a great playing feel. This alto saxophone utilized PISONI pads which are the most widely used, trusted and well respected in the industry, reassuring you that this an saxophone of the highest caliber. The lacquered finish is nothing short of gorgeous and the USA mouthpiece is very professional, coming with a ligature and cap. The sax stands at 28 inches tall and comes with a small range of brilliant accessories including a professional Roy Benson Saxophones carrying case which is lightweight and highly durable to protect your investment. Also, the RBAS comes with a padded strap and cleaning rods for the essentials. There is much debate in the alto saxophone world regarding saxophones being manufactured in China. The fact of the matters is that this is not always a bad thing and you cannot let a few bad examples ruin it for all. This is especially true when you consider the fact that Yamaha manufacture all of their saxophones in China and they are a company synonymous with quality and professionalism. The RBAS separates itself entirely from the bad apples of the Chinese manufactured alto saxophones. Roy Benson has retained their German engineering excellence and core company values to ensure all of their horns are of the highest quality yet remain affordable to the average player. It is made of a gorgeous red bronze with a striking antique finish and a carved pattern surface that really make this sax stand out. It is designed for professional and novice saxophonists alike and is suitable for solo players and also use within jazz bands and classical music accompaniment. It boasts water resistant pads and a bluing steel needle for maximum durability. The abalone shell key inlays are super comfortable and make playing easy and free flowing. This alto saxophones range is E flat to F sharp and it hits the full complement flawlessly. In terms of accessories and associated equipment, Ammoon has outdone themselves. There is also a high-quality mouthpiece, cleaning cloth, straps, gloves, cork grease and much more. Should you opt for this alto saxophone you will not only be getting a quality product but also a whole host of essential supplies to keep you stocked up for the foreseeable future. With alto saxophones in this price range many players can be hesitant, and rightfully so as there are enough horror stories out there to put anyone off. However for many they have no choice as horns in the high hundreds or even thousands of dollars are just not feasible. You can rest assured however with this release from Ammoon, it would be a tremendous first saxophone for fledgling players of any age yet has the quality and durability to continue impressing you as you improve and progress. Suitable for players of all levels this could easily be a beginner purchase that lasts you a lifetime. Their company ethos is to create beautifully designed instruments accessible to everyone. Many of the original members of the company have years of personal experience playing in orchestras and bands meaning they know these instruments intimately. Brass, wind and bowed string instruments are their areas of expertise and each product is finely crafted with pride and care. Price wise they are extremely competitive within the marketplace. Many of their products go for below wholesale price and they pride themselves on the highest caliber of customer service. Merano has a wonderful personable quality that really shines through with their customers often sharing musical anecdotes with those who get in touch. This particular release from Merano is outstanding. There is professionalism in every inch of this alto saxophone and the blue lacquered finish is striking and gorgeous. It stands at 29 inches tall yet weighs just 9. The GWD comes with a professional velvet lined, a zippered hard case which will keep your sax perfectly protected. It also comes with a screwdriver, nipper, pair of gloves, cleaning cloth and a bonus 10 reeds. It is lightweight with a great, warm sound, is easy to play and the blue finish will really make you stand out from the crowd. Middle of the road in terms of price and quality and the blue finish is absolutely brilliant. They are extremely proud of their brand and specialize in the student instrument market in the brass, strings and woodwind categories. Kaizer offers a level of quality to beginners typically found in horns designed for professionals. Reliability is without a doubt their strong point and they produce highly durable saxophones aimed at young beginners, those of you just starting out and students who play in school bands and orchestras. It has been designed with the beginner in mind and extra attention has been placed on ease of playing and increased response and intonation. It boasts high-quality steel springs for quick action, a wonderfully sensitive response, and premium leatherette pads. It also boasts a solid brass body and robust construction, available in either the traditional golden lacquer finish or in a silver lacquer finish. The list of accessories that come with this saxophone is almost as impressive as the sax itself. There is a superb molded case to protect your horn, an excellent mouthpiece and ligature set and an essential saxophone maintenance kit consisting of a cleaning cloth, rods, gloves, and lubricant. There is however 1 final wonderful surprise with this product. A special offer of a p HD high action camera complete with the waterproof casing so you can record you playing and progress and share it with your friends and family or with the world via YouTube.
