by Dr. Bruce Goldberg. Dr. Goldberg developed the technique and field of progressing patients into future lives in In this groundbreaking book, a sequel to his best-selling Past Lives, Future Lives, he reveals the implications of karma in our lives, how we are affected by reincarnation, and how hypnosis can reveal our pasts and our futures.

What has happened since I last spoke to you? I am very upset with my father. He has been very moody with me lately. Do you know what is troubling him? Yes, I think I do. The King has been worried about all of these wars and invasions. He has ordered more ships to be built than usual. I think our King is putting pressure on all of his advisors. Because my father advises him on military matters and security issues, father is under a lot of stress. How has he taken this out on you? He has forbid me to see my boyfriend. So why does this make that much of a difference? I may not be in love with him, but I am a woman [she is now 19]. I think it has to do with security or military matters. Nobody tells me anything. Her father was ordered to keep his daughter away from that man because they feared he was trying to use Rachael to somehow get to the King. There apparently was some incriminating evidence to substantiate these allegations. If father forbids me, then I will not see him again. I will not go against the wishes of my father, not for anyone. Rachael accepted this situation with class. Being the realist that she was meant going on with her life and maintaining loyalty to her family. Do you ever think about getting married? When my father thinks the time is right, he will arrange for my marriage. Is that acceptable to you? From that exchange, I learned to deal with other matters. Because I knew this life would somehow involve either John, Dave, or both, I continued. Is there anything special that you are looking forward to? The King is having a large dinner party and he has invited us. What is special about this function? A lot of important people are going to be there. Do you know why these people have been invited here at this particular time? Well, it probably concerns the Army. Either we are going to war or peaceful negotiations are in progress. I try not to concern myself with these matters. That is an interesting choice, indeed.

Pickover Prometheus Books "Clifford A. Pickover is the heir apparent to Carl Sagan: Dreaming the Future is an engrossing exploration, compulsively readable and wonderfully entertaining. I now have a reference work to which I can point inquirers, saving myself much discussion and fuss. Help make this a self-fulfilling prophecy by buying this book! He has collected a representative sample with his usual insights and wit. In this fascinating book, acclaimed author Clifford Pickover presents an exhaustive list of fortune-telling methods, from the ominous practice of human sacrifice to reading tarot cards. Pickover not only explores a vast and colorful array of methods of prediction-including dreaming-he also evaluates the accuracy of some of the most astonishing prophecies made throughout history. Just how accurate were such famous soothsayers as Nostradamus, the Delphic Oracle, Edgar Cayce, the children of Fatima whose third vision has only recently been revealed, and dozens more? This book takes us one step further by exploring our own inner psyches: Why does looking into the future provide a source of solace in a world filled with uncertainty, disease, and chance? And why do the most noted prognosticators so often warn of natural catastrophes of biblical proportions, such as earthquakes and floods that will signal the end of the world? Through insight and wit, Pickover unlocks the door of your imagination with engrossing mysteries, intriguing illustrations, and even computer and electronic techniques. Also included is a range of practical divination experiments and recipes-from Stone Age to New Age. Prepare yourself for a strange but captivating ride. Let your spirit soar. Dream with the Gods. Our understanding changes, but our wonder remains constant. Your sons and daughters will prophesy, your young men will see visions, your old men will dream dreams. For example, the Chester Beatty Papyrus, discovered in 1822, is a record of Egyptian dream interpretations from around 400 BC. Heroes in Greek, Indian, Babylonian, Islamic, and Old Testament legends and myths often received messages in dreams, and the prophet Muhammad was so concerned about dream divination he forbade the practice. More recently, Joseph Smith, the founder of Mormonism, said he had a dream in which the angel Moroni told him where to find hidden golden tablets. According to Smith, Native Americans are the descendants of this family. Today, a forty-foot-high statue of Moroni stands near Palmyra, New York, where Smith said he discovered the buried tablets. The ancient Greek world saw dreams as visitations from gods and the souls of the dead. The oneirologos, or dream reader, played an important role in Greek society. The most famous dream interpretation book is the Oneirocritica from the Greek oneiros, "a dream" by the Greek soothsayer Artemidorus Daldianus who lived in the second century AD. When the Christian Church gained political power, it made all forms of divination capital crimes and burned the dream books. The Church declared all dreams false and sent by demons. Modern dream books are popular and profitable today. Just type "dream interpretation" at Amazon. Dream interpretation varied significantly from culture to culture. Many of the Christian seers suggested that dreams often meant the opposite of what they seemed to mean. Thus, if you dream of poverty and filth, you will acquire something valuable. If you dream of the dead, you will hear news of the living, and so forth. For example, asparagus tied in bundles was an omen of tears, but if the dream asparagus was growing, it was a sign of good fortune. The appearance of artichokes suggested that a person would receive a favor from an unexpected direction. Cauliflower meant you would become poor. Often a dream was supposed to reveal the future only when the dream occurred on a precise date. This charm fails of its effect if tried any other day of the year. Take three roses, smoke them with sulfur, and exactly at three in the day bury one of the roses under a yew-tree; the second in a newly-made grave, and put the third under your pillow for three nights, and at the end of that period burn it in a fire of charcoal. Your dreams during that time will be prophetic of your future destiny, and, what is still more curious and valuable, says Mother Bridget, the man whom you are to wed will enjoy no peace till he comes and visits you. Besides this, you will perpetually haunt his dreams. The future seems to be forbidden territory. We are all taught that the past has occurred, the present is occurring, but the futures has yet to occur. Then how could we possibly know it -- by whatever means in the present? Bruce Goldberg, Past Lives, Future Lives Probably many of you have heard about past-life regression in which a person seems to be hypnotically "regressed" to recall information from past lives. Believers in past-life regression say that people are able to recall details about life in earlier times, and this is proof of reincarnation and the existence of past lives. Empowering the Present Through Past Life,⁵³ we hear from regressees who vividly recall suffering at the hands of Nazi war criminals. None of these people were aware of such experiences until they attempted to regress to a previous life. Jenny describes how, after years of painstaking searching, she finally reunited with family members from her previous lifetime. Skeptics of past-life regression say that, under hypnosis, people can recall all kinds of information learned during their normal lives and then incorporate the information into a realistic fantasy. Less well known is the practice of future-life progression in which a person attempts to give information about the future while under hypnosis. Here are a few interesting examples. In , California psychologist Dr. Helen Wambach, author of Life Before Life,⁵⁶ began a series of studies in hypnosis in a desire presumably to debunk reincarnation. Using over a thousand subjects, she conducted a long-term survey of past-life recalls under hypnosis. Wambach asked specific questions about past time periods in which people said they lived. She asked subjects to recall their clothing, footwear, utensils, money, and housing. Wambach believed that these people were actually having recollections and that they were often quite accurate. She wrote that "fantasy and genetic memory could not account for the patterns that emerged in the results. Wambach also found that some hypnotized clients seemed to see their future lives where they lived in a devastated and depopulated Earth. Over the next few years, Dr. Wambach conducted a study of over people undergoing hypnotic future-life progression. During hypnosis, Wambach offered the participants a choice of three past time periods and two future time periods in which to enter. Of the 2, people in the study, six percent reported being alive in AD, and 13 percent said they were alive in the AD period. In other words, only a few of the subjects progressed to the future. Concerned, Wambach asked one of her students to progress to a specific date in the late s but had to rapidly bring the woman out of hypnotic trance after the woman found herself "choking to death on a big, black cloud. In , there was supposed to be an isolated incident in which a European nuclear explosion killed many people Figure 1. In an interview published in the Rainbow Ark magazine,⁵⁸ Snow said the massive changes in the Earth would take place. There were some fleeting images of an Arab-Israeli war in but no details. Snow said, "With regard to atomic weapons, there will be one more atomic explosion before the end of the atomic era. This explosion will be so terrible and will shock humanity so badly that no one will dare to use that weapon again. However it should not be incorrect by more than a few decades. Snow suggests that the future is not set in stone, and that the mind can somehow alter the timeline: I believe, by changing our present behavior, we can change our future. We can go back in time, through past-life regression, and heal relationships in the past, and our present will then change because our vibration is no longer the same. As you think, so you are. The mind is the builder. I encourage my clients to work now, in the present, on the pathways they are forming which will build their future. People ask, "Where do I go? Where are the safe lands? You will be drawn to a place of safety for you. The new energy on the planet is about service, but not in a servile way. Snow describes two different regions of time on which he focussed: Twenty-five percent of the test group whom he progressed into the future found themselves either living on a space station orbiting Earth or on another planet. Their society was high tech and had contact with friendly extraterrestrials. Thirty-percent of the group lived on Earth in a high tech society with machines, and they lived in domes or underground. They wore jumpsuits and did not seem happy. Eighteen percent of the group were vegetarians, wore loose, flowing robes, and lived happily in harmony with nature. Twenty percent of the group lived in small rustic towns resembling villages of the 19th century. They wore jeans, boots, and tunics, raising farm animals and eating meat. A small percentage of the experimental group reported living in the ruins of major cities like New York and existing in a primitive fashion. In , some progressees predicted that Soviets would take over parts of eastern Europe. Another famous practitioner of future-life progression is Dr. Bruce Goldberg, author of Past Lives, Future Lives, originally published in but with newer editions in . Goldberg believed it was possible, under hypnosis, to rise above the stream of time and look ahead, just as one can rise in a helicopter above a highway and view traffic congestion to be encountered by cars traveling down the road. In a sense, one would be reading the future of cars on the road. Goldberg has performed thousand of hypnotic regressions and hundreds of progressions.

On the count of 20, you will perceive yourself in the future. Your subconscious and superconscious mind levels have all the knowledge and information that you desire. Carefully and comfortably feel yourself moving into the future with each count from 1 to Number 1, feel yourself now moving forward to the future, into this very, very deep and dark tunnel. Two, 3, farther and farther into the future. Four, 5, 6, the tunnel is very, very dark. Ten, 11, 12, the tunnel is now getting a little bit lighter and you can perceive a light at the end, another white light just like the white light that is surrounding you. Now you are almost there. The door will be opened in just a few moments and you will see yourself in a future life. Eighteen, you open the door, 19, you step into this future, to this future scene. Carefully focus on your surroundings. Can you perceive yourself? Can you perceive other people around you? Focus on the environment. What does it look like? Carefully focus on this. Use your complete objectivity. Block out any information from the past that might have interfered with the quality of the scene. Use only what your subconscious and superconscious mind level will observe. Now take a few moments, focus carefully on the scene, find out where you are, what you are doing, why are you there. Take a few moments, let the scene manifest itself.
