Alphonse Mucha Easel Calendar: The Alphonse Mucha " x " Easle Desk Calendar captures the essence of a wide variety of Mucha s work. Alphonse Mucha Easel Calendar.

It also includes a magnetic device for maintaining metallic items in the tray. None of the earlier developments show a combination desk accessory tray and picture and calendar display easel with a tray cover foldable in one position and capable of being loaded and unloaded in another position with a third position for providing an easel having front and rear display windows. A further object of this invention is to provide a combination desk accessory which is compact and does not take up a great deal of space on any desk or table or the like. A further object of this invention is to provide a multi-purpose desk accessory which has magnetic means for holding metal devices such as paper clips, thumb tacks, and staples which will prevent spilling if the desk accessory is accidentally hit. Yet a further object of this invention is to provide a combination desk accessory which is attractive yet economical in construction and readily manufactured. Still another object of this invention is to provide a combination desk accessory which may be inexpensively shipped in quantities without taking up a great deal of space. Still a further object of this invention is to provide a combination desk accessory having an easel which has windows on two sides for positioning on a desk so that the person sitting at the desk and a customer sitting in front of the desk can observe a picture or calendar or the like. Another object of this invention is to provide a combination desk accessory which permits ease in erecting and positioning the easel. Still a further object of this invention is to provide a combination desk accessory which provides pockets readily accessible for insertions of material to be displayed in the windows of the easel. These and other objects of the invention will be apparent from the following description including the drawings which are as follows: The cover C consists of a bottom panel 2, side panel 4, first cover panel 6 and a second cover panel 8. As shown in FIG. A backing sheet 12 is sealed at the bottom and sides and forms a pocket P for receiving viewable items in the window 10 such as calendars or photo information. The cover C may be made from paper, cardboard or plastic, but a laminate is preferred with an outer layer of a durable plastic material and the inner layer of a paper product such as cardboard or the like. This is also true of the pocket P on the first cover panel 6. The tray front 18 includes an access opening 34 and the rear facing partition 28 includes an access opening. The area surrounded by front wall 18 partitions 30 and 32 and partition 28 is designed to receive a stacking of note paper and the access openings 34 and 36 are provided to make it easy for finger removal of sheets of note paper. The side compartments M and N are available for receipt of metallic items such as paper clips and thumb tacks and are provided with at least one magnet G mounted in the bottom of the tray T. This is best shown in FIG. An additional compartment Q is provided in the tray T behind the rear facing partitions 28 for holding items such as rubber bands or staples and the like. In the walls 22 and 24 in partitions 30 and 32 notches 38, 40, 42, and 44 are provided for positioning the second cover panel 8 in an easel position with first cover panel 6 as best shown in FIG. In front of notches 40 and 42 are grooves 46 and 48 for receiving a pencil, pen or the like. The tray T is provided with a lip 50 which extends from the side walls 22 and 24 to the tray front. The bottom 16 of the tray and the tray rear 20 are sealed to the cover C. In loading the calendars or pictures or photos 14 in the pockets P, the loading position of the first cover panel 6 and the second cover panel 8 is in substantial horizontal position as illustrated in FIGS. Pocket openings 52, 54 and 56 are accessible when the first cover panel 6 and the cover panel 8 are substantially horizontal when positioned. A decorative cover sheet 66 is adhesively secured to the cover C as best shown in FIG. It is to be noted that the pocket P of the first cover panel 6 and the pocket P in the second cover panel 8, have openings 52 and 54 at the top of the pocket being closed at the bottom and sides. In the second display item loading and unloading position, the first cover panel pocket open top 52 faces the second cover panel pocket open top 54 and said pockets P are in second display item loading and unloading position.
