The former vice president made the statement shortly after his arrival from an overseas trip at the Nnamdi Azikiwe International Airport in Abuja yesterday. Atiku also stated that he was impressed beyond words by the recent military successes against the Boko Haram insurgents, including the successful assault on the notorious terrorists den, the Sambisa Forest, which he says has sent a clear message that criminals, cannot defeat law and order permanently. He paid special tributes to the officers and men who lost their lives in the line of duty or battle field, and called on the authorities to take adequate care of the families of fallen heroes. It also shows that there are people who paid the supreme sacrifice for us to get to where we are today as one, united and happy nation. Speaking yesterday at the Armed Forces Remembrance Day, El-Rufai saluted the military for laying their lives for the nation. He stressed that with the military capacity and capability, emergence of new threat of banditry particularly in the North-west and North-central of Nigeria would be crushed like insurgency. According to him, the performance of the military has been commendable, particularly from the beginning of the end of So, we are very proud of their performance and we commend them for their patriotism and the risk that they take. This government has from day one committed to supporting federal security agencies to raise the levels of peace and security in the state. Akinwunmi Ambode, yesterday emphasised the significance of remembering the fallen heroes, noting that they all fought hard and paid the greatest price for the unity of Nigeria. Ambode stressed the need for the continuous remembrance of the fallen heroes who laid their lives for the unity of the country, saying that the country must remain united to celebrate and honour them. The whole essence of being Nigerians is for us to live as a united country. Some people have laid their lives for us to be here today. The Osun State Governor, Mr. The governor while addressing the people at the grand finale of the Armed Forces Remembrance Day celebration, at the Military Cenotaph, Osogbo, lauded security agencies in the country for destroying the Sambisa forest base of the group. Aregbesola stated that the nation would not forget the gallant soldiers and security officials whose lives have been lost in the cause of putting down the Boko Haram uprising. He commiserated with the government and people of the northern states of Borno, Yobe, Adamawa, Gombe, Bauchi, Taraba and others caught in the throes of the group, whose people have been brutalised, killed or kidnapped and many who are now in Internally Displaced Persons IDPs camps. Aregbesola, who described peace as the indispensable means of existence, said the roles being played by the security agents in the country to continuously engender peaceful coexistence among Nigerians can never be over-emphasized since the discovery of Nigeria. Mimiko stated this in Akure, the state capital, during the celebration of the Armed Forces Remembrance Day, held at the Alagbaka Cenotaph. We must therefore examine all issues that led to the emergence of various centrifugal forces in our nation. He stated that their sacrifice for the country is a remarkable commitment that would never be forgotten. Ayade insisted that the legacy of their death has remained a great strength for the country. We must not fail their great commitment to our beloved country. These men and women who died to keep our country safe are indeed great heroes we must continue to honour and appreciate for their faithfulness to a noble cause. While thanking the military for restoring peace in the North-east region of the country, Amosun urged all Nigerians to live in unity, irrespective of differences in gender, tribe, religion and political affiliation. Amosun, along side top officers in the military and the Paramount Rulers in the state, earlier took turns to lay the wreath at the cenotaph in honour of fallen heroes. The governor also released 57 white pigeons as a symbol of national peace, with each pigeon representing the 20 local governments and 37 Local Council Development Areas of the state. The fallen heroes were later honoured with a gun salute, after which the ceremony was wrapped up with a march-out of the colour party and the rest of the parade.
