She decided she needed an addition. The addition was constructed from insulation board, covered with drywall joint compound used as stucco. The Outside Views of the whole front. The animals in the front yard were sculpted by Karl Blindheim. Grace made most of the cactus but a couple were purchased. But there was no room inside the house for it. So it had to live on the patio. The doll, soon named Paula Running Nose, arrived in her nightgown and curlers and holding a box of Kleneex. Paula was having a party on the front patio. The morning of the party, she has been feverishly cooking and has the table set up for her guests on the patio. Inside, the living room is cleaned up, but the kitchen is a mess! In the bedroom, she has her skirt and top laid out to get dressed at the last minute. A few miscellaneous photos of the outside. A photo of the addition front. Two showing the background. And a close-up of the animals and pond. This adorable little donkey was sent to me by Irene Holoway to put in my SW yard. He will be peeking around the corner of the house. Armadillo I painted this little armadillo for the SW house. The Living Room So many neat things, that Grace included a lot of different views. A few miscellaneous photos of the Living Room. Grace constructed the table and she peti-pointed the rugs. The Kitchen The kitchen may be a mess Take a look at what the BIG dog is up to! Second photo on the last row is of the empty kitchen counter. Grace built the kitchen from kits by Bonnie Lavish. The last photo is an over view photo. The Bedroom The bedroom has an office at one end. A few miscellaneous photos of the bedroom. Picture of the train set and a photo of the party outfit laid out on the bed. The Bathroom The bathtub tiles were laser printed by Bonnie Lavish. A miscellaneous photo of the bathroom. Grace bashed a country cabinet kit that she got from Bonnie Lavish to make this SW bathroom cabinet. If you have any questions about it, feel free to get in touch with Grace.
