All dressed up, but nowhere to go? The sad part is that there is no record anywhere whether these trained persons were able to land a job. After getting the initial feedback a historical Apprentices Act was passed in Initially, the Act envisaged training of trade apprentices for Class 8,10 and 12 pass youth in over various designated trades. Amendment of incorporated various sections regarding reservation for candidates belonging to Other Backward Classes, expenditure on Related Instruction RI to be imparted at the cost of employer, and requiring it to provide flexibility in respect of ratios prescribed for apprenticeship seats. The last amendment in replaced trade-wise regulation by a band of 2. In all designated trades for Class 8, 10 and 12 pass and trades for diploma in engineering and under graduates have been made available with training periods varying from six months to three or even four years. About 2, government-run and 9, privately-owned industrial training institutes have been set up under the Apprentice Act which generate skilled manpower. Training is imparted in trades 73 engineering, 48 non-engineering, and five exclusively for visually impaired for duration varying from one to two years. In order to advise the government on training policies, norms and standards, trade testing and certification etc. Entrusted with the responsibilities of prescribing standards and curricula for craftsmen training, it also advises on the overall policy and programmes and conducts All-India Trade Tests and awards national trade certificates. In , 1,95, training seats for the trade apprentices in trades were utilised against 2,78, seats identified in 24, establishments. As usual the emphasis being on utilisation for various reserved categories, the record has been quite impressive. Similarly, under National Council of Vocational Training NCVT conducting tests for graduate and technician apprentices, there were subjects fields designated for the category of technician vocational apprentices. In a total of 57, seats for the apprenticeship training have been utilised against 96, seats available. Once again for reserved categories out of the 57, seats utilised, 5, were SC, ST, 3, minorities, physically handicapped and 13, were women trainees. Impressive record indeed, but unfortunately this is only half the story. The sad part is that there is no record anywhere whether these trained persons were able to land a job or start their own enterprise putting the training imparted to some good use. Perhaps the ministry of skill development and entrepreneurship could go a step further and build up a data bank with the trainees Aadhaar card UID number to keep track of their progress after they have left the portals of the training institute, which is the ultimate aim. After all, the proof of the pudding is in eating. The writer is a former member of the Railway Board.

Taos, New Mexico Do you worry about skin cancer , does skin cancer run in your family, or have you found pre-cancerous spots or lesions on your skin before? The most common place where people get UV exposure is from the sun. When you lay out, tan, or burn, you expose your skin to unnecessary ultraviolet radiation. This radiation can change the structure of cells in your skin. Over time these cells can replicate and can become different forms of cancer. If you simply limit your sun exposure, you stand a much lower chance of getting skin cancer. This means staying out of the sun. Most of us cannot just stay inside all day, every day. When you must be outside between 10 and 4, be sensible. Cover up your body. This includes wearing long-sleeved clothing, long pants, broad-brimmed hats, and even sunglasses that block UV rays. These items may seem like overkill, but they do keep you from being exposed to the sun. You should wear sunscreen every day. Make sure that your sunscreen has a broad spectrum and an SPF of 15 or higher. Apply your sunscreen before you go outside, and then reapply it every 2 hours. You also want to reapply it after you swim or exercise to the point where you sweat. Even water-resistant sunscreen cannot be trusted after these activities. You will also want to check your skin yourself every so often. Go over your body and see if you have any new spots or spots that have changed. If anything changes a lot, go see a doctor right away. In fact, you should get your skin checked for skin cancer and precancerous lesions at least once a year. While your self-checks are very important, your doctors know exactly what different types of skin cancer look like. They can make sure that you did not miss anything important. When you do all of these things, you should be able to prevent most skin cancer. Have you decided that a hard money loan is right for you? Maybe you need money fast, have negative items in your credit report that might keep you from getting a regular loan, or just prefer to work outside of the traditional ending system. No matter your reason or reasons for choosing a hard money loan, your next step is to find a hard money lender. Many hard money lenders are more open to negotiating terms than traditional lenders are. If you are looking for a particular repayment schedule, a certain interest rate, or some special features to your loan, you will want to search out hard money lenders who offer those features in those long, or who are open to negotiating with you. This can help you get the best possible deal on a loan, and it can also help you make sure you find a good lender for you. Find out who they worked with and whether or not they recommend that person or group of investors for you. If they do, you may have a lead on the perfect hard money lender for you. If they do not recommend their lender, you know who to avoid as you search. Try to talk to different hard money lenders before you choose one. You may even want to find out how much each would be willing to lend you, the interest rate that they would offer you, and how many fees there would be on your loan. This can be a great way to find a good hard money loan and the perfect hard money lender for you. Since most hard money lenders are individuals or groups of investors, you may have more contact directly with your lenders than you would if you were taking out a traditional loan. You may also want to choose a hard money lender based on location. If you are putting a piece of property up for collateral, hard money lenders in the near vicinity may have a better idea about the properties value than those who live far away. At Montegra , we take pride in being hard money lenders who care. Hopefully, you will have all of the money that you need soon! Does your back hurt all the time? Has someone told you that back pain surgery might be the best step for you to take to find relief from your pain? We can help you figure out what your next steps are and how you can find relief from your back pain. Back pain surgery is usually the last resort. Most back pain will subside using non-surgical options. You should try these before you even consider surgery for your back pain. Start by taking some medications for your pain. Sometimes, these can alleviate your pain enough that you can participate in physical therapy that will improve your back pain. If they work to lower inflammation, they may allow your back to heal without the necessity of surgical intervention. You can even alternate between the two if that would work better for you. Try to do minutes of ice, followed by minutes of cold. Do this two or three times, two or three times a day. You may be surprised at how better your back pain feels. Try seeing a chiropractor or an osteopathic doctor who can manipulate your back to reduce pressure in certain areas, improve your blood flow, and more. Regular treatments can keep your back in great shape and help you heal from whatever is causing your pain. Similarly, massage may be able to help. If your pain comes from a soft-tissue injury, massage can help your muscles relax again. Similarly, if your pain comes from a structural injury, the muscles around it will clench up to protect the area. Massage can help relax them and alleviate your pain while you heal. Try working with a physical therapist, too. He or she will give you exercises you can do for your back. Your program may even include low-impact aerobic exercise, to help you lose weight, improve your cardiovascular fitness, and move your back regularly. If you have tried all of these things and maybe more! These will vary based on what is going on with your back. Your doctor may order an MRI, an X-ray, or other imaging tests to determine what procedure has the best chance of allowing you to go back to your everyday life without pain. Do you feel sick a lot? Maybe you struggle with pain or seizures or high blood pressure. No matter your reason for researching CBD drops, you were probably here because you have heard that they can help you feel better. The truth is, CBD drops can you improve your health in a number of ways. This is a cannabinoid, one of that are found in the marijuana plant. You can take the CBD oil out of the rest of the plant, which is beneficial because it is not psychoactive. This means that you can use CBD oil and never feel high. CBD mimics cannabinoids that your body already produces. You have many of these substances in your body already! In fact, you have an entire endocannabinoid system inside of you. The system is regulated by these cannabinoids and seems to influence how much you sleep, how much you eat, how much pain you feel, and how well your immune system reacts when it needs to. CBD works by binding to different places in the system. In doing so, it seems to help regulate that system better. It can help you fall asleep, help you find your appetite again, lower your overall inflammation, and help your immune system react appropriately when it needs to. Can also influence how many neurotransmitters your body produces and how these Act. All of these together mean that CBD drops can help lower your pain, reduce nausea, lower blood pressure, and more. CBD drops have been used to treat epilepsy for years, especially some particular kinds that are very very difficult to regulate with medication. Do you have high blood pressure in your family or worry a lot about heart health? CBD lowers blood pressure. It even keeps your blood pressure from rising under situations where that might normally happen. Their blood pressure did not rise as much as that of normal people who did not take CBD oil. It is always your choice whether to try something like CBD drops to treat your medical conditions. Though marijuana usage has been controversial for many years, it is now legal in some states including Washington. The company of Higher Leaf has the products that you need. You will love having the help that you need if you are suffering with pain and debilitating symptoms from you disease. With the help of medical marijuana, many people are getting the help that they want from their medical conditions with the use of medical marijuana. If you are one one of those people, it may be hard for you to understand that people would want to use it. But when you are the one suffering, you will probably feel differently. If you have tried medical marijuana and you have received that help that you want, you will be onboard with the legalization of CBD oil. You can get the help that you want and feel better. You will be happy to know that there is a dispensary in Kirkland and that you can get the help that you need by visiting this dispensary. You can find out about the new strains that you may not be familiar with and you can get the products that you need. The team at Higher Leaf will be very helpful and informative and you can get the products that you need with their help.
