And all the days we have spent together. You are my best friend, my soul mate, And I know you will always be there until the end. Your shoulder to cry on will always be there Whenever there is something wrong. When times are tough, you are always there; It shows me your love and care. Although we are going in separate ways, You will always remain in my heart. None in this world can see How special you are to me. You are my strength, you are my power, My best friend, my soul mate. I always dreamed of a friend like you, And when I found you, it was like a dream come true. You understand the worst side of me, That no one can ever see. It is always that Together we party and together we cry. The friend like you is hard to find. You were always there when no one cared. We have been through good and bad times, And you always made me laugh when I was sad, My best friend, my soul mate. Best friends are like flowers, like a rose, Or like a ghost whose spirit never dies. You are always behind me whenever times are tough, My best friend, my soul mate. You are like a ray of sunshine, Always present with me whenever the world as dark. You have guided me through bad times, Wiped away my tears, My best friend, my soul mate. We are like two bodies and one soul. You are the best person among rest. Our time together is passing day by day, But now until the very end, You will always be my best friend, My best friend, my soul mate.

Chapter 2 : My Pen and My Soul Have Ever Gone Together : Vikki J. Vickers :

The first true intellectual biography of Thomas Paine, this book establishes the origins of his beliefs and their influence on his activism. For the past century, scholars have been studying Paine in piecemeal fashion; studies of limited scope focused on.

Hear the music of Love Eternal Teaching us to reach for goodness sake. Auden , September 1, Lines ; for a anthology text the poet changed this line to "We must love one another and die" to avoid what he regarded as a falsehood in the original. Among those whom I like or admire, I can find no common denominator, but among those whom I love, I can: Love, and do what thou wilt: Love and then what you will, do. What does love look like? It has the hands to help others. It has the feet to hasten to the poor and needy. It has eyes to see misery and want. It has the ears to hear the sighs and sorrows of men. That is what love looks like. What sort of shape does it have? What sort of height does it have? What sort of feet does it have? What sort of hands does it have? No one can say. Yet it has feet, for they lead to the Church. It has hands, for they stretch out to the poor person. It has eyes, for that is how he is in need is understood: Blessed, it says, is he who understands. Boniface Ramsey, Works of St. New City Press, , Homily 7, Para 10, p. Quantum in te crescit amor, tantum crescit pulchritudo; quia ipsa charitas est animae pulchritudo. Inasmuch as love grows in you, in so much beauty grows; for love is itself the beauty of the soul. Meyers Since love grows within you, so beauty grows. For love is the beauty of the soul. Nondum amabam, et amare amabam I was not yet in love , yet I loved to love I sought what I might love, in love with loving. Augustine of Hippo in Confessions c. Late have I loved you, O Beauty ever ancient and ever new! Late have I loved you! And, behold, you were within me, and I out of myself, and there I searched for you. Essays in honor of Karl Rahner, S. So late I loved you, O Beauty ever ancient and ever new! So late I loved you! The Ethics of Modernism: Too late I loved you! Introduction to a Philosophy of Religion by Alice Von Hildebrand Love all men, even your enemies; love them, not because they are your brothers, but that they may become your brothers. Thus you will ever burn with fraternal love, both for him who is already your brother and for your enemy, that he may by loving become your brother. From The Whole Christ: Choose to love whomsoever thou wilt: Thou mayest say, "I love only God, God the Father. If Thou lovest Him, thou dost not love Him alone; but if thou lovest the Father, thou lovest also the Son. Or thou mayest say, "I love the Father and I love the Son, but these alone; God the Father and God the Son, our Lord Jesus Christ who ascended into heaven and sitteth at the right hand of the Father, the Word by whom all things were made, the Word who was made flesh and dwelt amongst us; only these do I love. If thou lovest the Head, thou lovest also the members; if thou lovest not the members, neither dost thou love the Head. We cannot help loving what is beautiful. Augustine of Hippo , Confessions c. Harsh Times , written by David Ayer B[edit] If the learned and worldly-wise men of this age were to allow mankind to inhale the fragrance of fellowship and love, every understanding heart would apprehend the meaning of true liberty , and discover the secret of undisturbed peace and absolute composure. Truth is the light that gives meaning and value to charity. That light is both the light of reason and the light of faith, through which the intellect attains to the natural and supernatural truth of charity: Without truth, charity degenerates into sentimentality. Love becomes an empty shell, to be filled in an arbitrary way. To love is to risk living fully. Only love stops hate. This is the eternal law.

And yet—increasingly, I find myself exploring- and even believing- in things that defy the teachings of my childhood upbringing. Have We Lived Before? As Brian and I talked over lunch together, he told me the story of his patient Catherine, a woman debilitated by phobias and anxiety, who failed to improve after a year and a half of intensive psychotherapy, even after hypnosis had uncovered a suppressed memory of childhood sexual abuse. Then one day, under hypnosis, Brian invited Catherine to go further back into young childhood, to see if there was a repressed memory even younger, and much to his surprise, Catherine went back years to a memory of a past life! After many subsequent sessions during which Catherine remembered 86 past lives in great detail, and after her fear and anxiety finally resolved, Columbia and Yale-trained Brian had to face an impossible question- could any of this actually be true? Brian was initially very skeptical. Certainly, these were just elaborate fantasies created by a wild imagination. And her clinical improvement was undeniable. While under hypnosis, Catherine would experience a life, find for herself a lesson she might learn about her present life from the wisdom she gleaned from that past life, and then Brian would progress her forward to the time of her death in that life. As Brian was sharing all of this with me, he was conveying how shocking it all was to him. After all, he was a highly respected psychiatrist heading up the department. He feared for his reputation should he tell anyone about what had transpired between he and his patient. Yet, after seeing thousands of patients, his clinical judgment led him to believe Catherine. She showed no signs of delusional thinking, schizophrenic behavior, bipolar disorder, or other tendencies towards psychiatric diagnoses other than her phobias and anxiety, which were resolving. Catherine was raised Catholic and was secure in her faith, so like me, she had never been raised to believe past lives exist. And yet- here they were. Real as ever, in great detail, in her memory. When I was researching Mind Over Medicine order it here and finding seemingly unbelievable evidence of spontaneous remissions in the medical literature, I was very skeptical, and yet the evidence was right there in the medical literature I trusted. Why had I not been taught that spontaneous remissions are not only possible, but that we can be proactive about increasing our chances of experiencing them? Similarly, Brian was equally shocked when he started digging into the medical literature and discovering that there was copious data about past lives in the psychiatric literature. Why had he not been taught about such things? Why are we in the medical profession so reluctant to teach what we may not understand? Why are we so uncomfortable with what lies outside of things we can prove with the scientific method? My Past Life Regression Although I have been curious about such things, I have never done a past life regression, but I figured I was here with the master. But I was game to try. The walls were fake wood paneling. My mother was crying because my father was a medical student, always gone, always working, and my young mother was lonely. My baby self made a vow to never leave her feeling lonely like he did. A Prenatal Memory Next, I was invited to remember a time in the womb. But all I saw was pink light. Nothing else came through for me. My Last Life Then I was invited to go back further and to look at my shoes. I was twenty, young and scared to be away from home. My superior had ordered me to be the one who turned on the gas to kill a room full of children who were begging me not to do it. I was crying and he begged me not to hurt him, but I was afraid to disobey orders. So I turned on the gas and all the children died. Then I flashed to a scene twenty years later, when I killed myself with a gun after decades of shame and remorse. The Lessons Next, I was invited to identify the lessons I could learn from the past life I experienced. What came to me is that this explains my sometimes pathologic drive to heal the world in this lifetime. If I really did kill children in my last lifetime, it would make sense that I had some karmic debt to repay in this lifetime in order for my soul to progress. And it would make sense that I would have reincarnated in this lifetime with that little boy to somehow pay him back for what I did. Brian says we often reincarnate with the same group of souls so we can work things out, lifetime after lifetime. This could explain why I felt such a drive to be a doctor, even though I experienced many traumas and had to sacrifice my own health and happiness in order to become one. And perhaps this is why I was given the cosmic download link to the post about downloading of Mind Over Medicine , so I could heal even more people and allow my soul to progress. Do You Believe All This? Maybe this is all just fantasy. Maybe I just have a suggestible imagination capable of wild storytelling. But I met Brian Weiss in person, and he has now worked with over people doing past life regressions. We spoke, doctor to doctor, and he struck me as credible and trustworthy. But for now, tell me what you think! Any of you gone through a past life regression? Have you had any past life or suppressed early childhood memories?

2. My pen and my soul have ever gone together: Thomas Paine and the American Revolution: 2.

I must speak to you by such means as are within my reach. You pierce my soul. I am half agony, half hope. Tell me not that I am too late, that such precious feelings are gone for ever. I offer myself to you again with a heart even more your own than when you almost broke it, eight years and a half ago. Dare not say that man forgets sooner than woman, that his love has an earlier death. I have loved none but you. Unjust I may have been, weak and resentful I have been, but never inconstant. You alone have brought me to Bath. For you alone, I think and plan. Have you not seen this? Can you fail to have understood my wishes? I had not waited even these ten days, could I have read your feelings, as I think you must have penetrated mine. I can hardly write. I am every instant hearing something which overpowers me. You sink your voice, but I can distinguish the tones of that voice when they would be lost on others. Too good, too excellent creature! You do us justice, indeed. You do believe that there is true attachment and constancy among men. Believe it to be most fervent, most undeviating, in F. I must go, uncertain of my fate; but I shall return hither, or follow your party, as soon as possible.

For the past century, scholars have been studying Paine in piecemeal fashion; studies of limited scope focused on the minutiae of Paine's life and career, but no clear portrait had existed to know how the pieces fitted together.

Or you feel magnetically drawn to someone? You were sure that you were fated to meet and you feel a really deep connection with this person. I had an encounter like that in my second year at University. It was an evening in June, I was getting ready to meet some friends at a cafe to have dinner and it suddenly struck me that tonight was an important night. I was about to meet someone who would be important to me over the next couple of years. The excited energy around meeting this person was like meeting a dear old friend after a very long time apart. As soon as we met by chance, we had so much in common and we understood one another. We maintained contact by email for two years and then in my final year at University we had a passionate but short-lived relationship. What are those connections? Is it that you knew that person in a past life? Is it your soulmate? How can you know if someone is your soulmate? Lots of people ask these questions in readings. The reason why you make those soul-level agreements to meet up is because you want to exchange energy and teach each other a little something through your interaction, at a specific time in your life, or for a more prolonged period. All souls exchange energy with one another. Maybe you teach that person something about compassion in the five minutes you spend together. It can happen so indirectly and subtly – maybe through something you say, maybe through your manner. Just by being you. And perhaps in your encounter, they teach you something about playfulness and being carefree that takes your life or even just your mood in a different direction. You may remember the encounter for many years and it feels like a charged event because you REALLY needed and wanted that type of energy they showed up to give you or should we say, that type of energy they showed up to AWAKEN in you. Is that person a soulmate? It could be one soulmate. The important question to ask is, do you and this person have a lot of energy to exchange with one another on a long-term basis in a way that serves you both? You can also find out more about the type of connection you have with someone by consulting someone who can read your Akashic Record or look into your astrology chart – such as the composite chart and also the synastry between you. Your nearest and dearest kindred spirits, those we have a lot in common with, tend to be those who have agreed to incarnate with you and keep you company here. Of course, that is not their only role, but we are even pack-animals on a soul-level. Empty Attachments Apart from the soul-level agreements, there are also unfulfilling attachments in relationships that can bring people together sometimes. For those encounters, you will have no energy to exchange with the person. But they did make some kind of contract before then, usually in a past life, that is still tying them together. Energetically, that can show in a reading as a negative contract – an energetically binding agreement to incarnate together lifetime after lifetime. That contract can sometimes occur for couples who are happy together – and in that case, it often creates a feeling obligation between them and so clearing it helps. But it can also be the reason why people who are learning nothing from one another are still together. And sometimes a contract like that can be one-sided. In those cases, you may feel a pull towards someone but they may feel indifferent towards you and that might be because the contract is still open on your side but they stopped honouring it some time ago. By contrast, a positive connection will be one where there is a nice exchange of energy going on.
