

Chapter 1 : A tiger is on the loose near Disneyland Paris

There are at least two gunmen on the loose in Paris, a French official in Washington, D.C. confirms to CBS News' Margaret Brennan, after the gunmen attacked the office of a French satirical.

Police in Belgium were believed to have holed the suspect in a house in Molenbeek near the capital. Yet authorities confirmed the siege had ended in one person being detained, who is not Salah. The jihadi is thought to have escaped the scene in central Paris on Friday night after a possible getaway car was found. Belgium news sources reported Salah had been arrested. Yet police have confirmed he is still not in custody. The hunt has been ongoing across Europe with Belgian authorities on high alert " while UK police and spies are working closely with France on the investigation. Cops have warned the public that Salah is too dangerous to be approached. Abdeslam Salah is still being sought by police It has emerged that Salah was stopped near the Belgian border on Saturday morning, and had his ID checked by police who then let him go. Four French officials have said police had Abdeslam in their grasp, when they stopped a car carrying him and two others, hours after authorities identified him as the renter of a Volkswagen Polo that carried hostage takers to the Bataclan concert hall. Abdeslam is also thought to have played a key role in planning the logistics of the attack. The death toll which earlier was thought to have been raised to , remains at according to hospitals in Paris. Latest updates show that of the 80 who were reported critically injured, three people died on Saturday, 42 are still in intensive care and 35 are no longer in intensive care. In total, people were admitted to hospital following the attacks and have now been discharged. They have distributed his picture in an effort to track him soon. Seven people have been arrested in Belgium in connection with the deadly attacks in Paris as the city entered three days of mourning for the people killed in the worst violence in France since the Second World War. One of the terrorists killed in the attacks is believed to be Ahmed Almuhammed, 25, a Syrian refugee. He arrived with another bomber on the Greek island of Leros on October 3, and travelled to Athens by boat, a Greek official has said. The passport was also registered in October in Serbia and Croatia, also countries on the corridor that crosses the Balkans. It was not clear whether the passport is real or fake, or whether it belonged to the suicide bomber. Almuhammed was reportedly rescued from a sinking refugee boat on October 3. A second refugee from Syria is reportedly involved after claiming asylum in Serbia. Paris Terror Attack One year on Terrorists slaughtered people during a series of coordinated terror attacks in Paris on Friday 13th November Almuhammed was reportedly a refugee rescued from a drowning boat Yesterday, police moved people away from the Place de la Republique in Paris, with reports that gunshots have been heard. Panicked people trampled over flowers and candles laid to honour the dead in a frantic bid to flee the area. Police have also advanced with guns drawn close to a small Cambodian restaurant and a bar that were the scenes of shooting on Friday night It later emerged that the crowd became panicked after hearing firecrackers being set off. Police said there is nothing to indicate further threats to Paris. In a new video today, they threatened the West saying an attack was coming to Washington DC. The scenario is similar to that which ensued after the January attacks on the offices of Charlie Hebdo in Paris. The suspects were pursued into the countryside to a print works, where the owner was held hostage by Cherif and Said Kouachi, before eventually being let go. The terrorists were then killed in a dramatic police assault. Two of the terrorists killed on Friday night were Frenchmen living in the Belgian capital Brussels. They were aged 20 and Abdeslam Salah, 26, is on the run after allegedly hiring a black VW Golf used in the attacks and playing a pivotal role in the planning. As many as three of the seven suicide bombers were French, as was at least one of the men arrested in Belgium. A third man, who died in the assault on the Bataclan concert hall, was year-old Ismael Mostefai, a Frenchman with known ties to Islamic radicalism. His father and brother have been arrested. Three Kalashnikov assault rifles were discovered inside a Seat car used in the attacks which was found in the suburb of Montreuil, four miles east of Paris. Prosecutors believe three teams of terrorists carried out the attacks. At least one of the attackers are believed to have passed through Greece as refugees from Syria , with one leaving in October. About were injured, at least 95 are critical. Dozens of Brits were caught up in the terrifying scenes in Paris on Friday and have spoken of their terror.
