Although we cannot stop time, we can slow down our days and learn how to treasure the precious moments we have with our children. I have to confess that I am a die hard Mama Mia fan. This song Slipping Through My fingers holds special memories for me. I went to see the movie Mama Mia with my mom. We treasure the rare moments we have together. I was in England when the movie came out and we went to see it together. When this song started she reached out and held my hand. It was a tender moment of connection between two moms who had experienced the truth captured by the lyrics. If only we could! Still although we cannot stop time, we can slow down our days and learn how to treasure the precious moments we have together. Life can get really busy for parents. It is all too easy to find yourself just going through the motions, moving mindlessly from one task to another, until you fall exhausted into your bed. Then the next day you drag yourself out of bed only to do it all again. Does that sound familiar? If this describes your life could I encourage you to stop right now and s-l-o-w down your life. Enjoy the time you have right now I have found that one of the most effective ways to do this is to start living in the present. Instead of focusing on all the things you need to do, put them aside and start enjoying the now with your children. Still if you can manage it even for a few moments a day you will see a difference in your connection with your children. Disconnect from technology – turn off your phone , or the computer, or the television just for a little while. No matter how useful they are technology will distract us from being present with our children. Who, by the way, will notice when we are distracted. Silence the demands of the to do list by setting it aside- realize that what you have accomplished so far is good enough for today. Then go and enjoy some time with your children. I must confess as a recovering perfectionist I continue to struggle to put this idea into practice. Still I have learned that silencing the list can be very liberating. Take the time to really notice your children while they are still with you. Cherish every stage of childhood. Treasure the moments you have together – as much as possible put aside distraction and simply enjoy what you are doing together in the moment. If you enjoy writing use a journal to create a record of your days with your children. Write about the special moments you have with your children; record the funny and insightful things they say; describe the way they looked. One day these journal entries will hold a treasure trove of memories both for you and your children. Take the FREE 7 day play activity challenge and you will discover Simple activities that you can start immediately. How to have fun and make memories in only 15 minutes a day. What do you find most challenging? Do you have any tips to share? This post contains affiliate links. The commission I earn helps me with the expense of this blog. Thanks for your support.

We understand that before you bring in or mail in your items you will have concerns on the value. Since Precious Moments are lovely and affordable collectible pieces, most of them are fairly common. Here is information on some of the more valuable pieces. In addition to how rare or common a piece is, several other factors will affect the value. Condition of the piece. While a damaged piece is no longer considered mint, a few will still hold value. Not all damage is readily seen at first glance. Check your items carefully for condition. To help illustrate how easy it is to miss damage at first glance, here are a few examples of damage to figurines. Condition of the box and packaging. The highest value of course will come with mint and clean figurines that have perfect original box as well as all of the original packaging, tags and inserts. Precious Moments are marked with a symbol indicating the date of manufacture. The oldest ones did not have a mark and are more valuable. Other than the no mark pieces, currently the marks usually make little to no difference in the value of the piece. Here is a table of marks to help identify when the pieces were made. The oldest Precious Moments came in white boxes, which would be the most valuable of the box styles. Here are pictures of Precious Moments boxes. Vimeo Precious Memories network got me a great deal on a two bedroom suite with full kitchen in Puerto Vallarta. The service was excellent the price even better. We were not sure if we made the right choice to join but are very happy we did. Can see the two more trips our membership is paid for. Real glad we bought into this membership, we have used it 3 times and had 3 great experiences. We travel often so for us it was a good plan. I like the condos as we can take the kids and not be crammed together and not have to argue and leave everytime we need to eat or do an activity. We can relax and enjoy and have fun together with privacy and comfort! My kids are 6, 8 and 11 and they take turns planning where we go each year. Now I am the best Dad ever! We take twice as many trips now because they are so much more affordable now. Best of times with PMN Their service is the best the girl Janet had patience and took all the time and made me feel special. Most agents want to get off the call quickly she was not in a hurry and had me in a beautiful condo in Breckenridge for my husband and me. The resort was beautiful, and the resort was right on the slopes. Thanks to Steve, that dream is now a reality. Everywhere I have gone with Precious Memories has been in the best locations with excellent security. I am so glad I am now a member of this network and have the whole world to discover. I was a little skeptical at first but glad we did this, works great we just got back from a week at Disney with the kids and had a 3 bedroom condo. Really easy to use and the service was great, so far so good! Now my wife makes sure we go at least twice a year. Precious Memories probably saved my marriage. As a single woman, I was always a little afraid to travel by myself. We own 3 timeshares in Cabo, so getting into this I was nervous cause you do not own a resort. This solves our issue though of not having to go through exchanges that dont work, we now use our timeshares in Cabo and when we want to go to Vegas or Florida or other places we can use our club for a maintenance fee. Great value for us and helps us save on other trips we take! Mark And Patty P Vancouver Canada The best part of this program is knowing that at least once a year the whole family will be together without everyone going in different directions. Everyone is just a little nicer to each other when we are on vacation.
