

Chapter 1 : 3 Ways to Print Part of an Excel Spreadsheet - wikiHow

Try printing selected text and/or images. This option is available in Microsoft Word for Mac and Windows. Instead of printing an entire Microsoft Word document, select the content or images you wish to print.

If you only want to print a single page or subset of pages, you can do that using the Print Options dialog box. Select the printing options you need. For an in-depth description of these options, see Print items in Outlook. Under Page Range, click or enter the specific page or pages that you want to print. To see how your message will look printed out, click Preview first. If you do not want to print the entire message or list, this will help you determine which individual pages to print. If you see a security message, click OK to continue. In the message, choose the section that you want to print. Select the text or other part of the message directly in the browser window, not in the Print Preview window. On the browser toolbar, click the arrow next to the Print button, and then click Print. Under Page Range, click Selection, and then click Print. Earlier versions of Outlook do not have this capability and you must open the message in a browser in order to print individual pages or sections. The version you are using is shown at the top of the About Microsoft Outlook box. Print a specific page of a message In any version of Outlook, you can print all the odd-numbered pages or even-numbered pages from the Number of pages option. You can print any pages you choose by switching to a browser view of the message. If you are using Office SP2, you can specify individual pages to print without using the browser view. To print selected pages using Office SP2 Do one of the following: In the message list, click the message you want to print, and then on the File menu, click Print. Under Print, click or enter the specific page or pages that you want to print. To confirm how your message will look printed out, click Print Preview first. Click OK to print. To print selected pages using browser view In the open message, on the Message tab, in the Actions group, click Other Actions, and then click View in Browser. If you see a security message, click OK if you choose to continue. On the browser toolbar, click the arrow next to the Print button, and then click Print Preview. Determine the page or pages that you want to print. On the toolbar, click Print. Under Page Range, click Pages, and then type the page numbers of the pages you want to print. Choose any other printing options. Print a section of a message Note: Office SP2 does not include the option of printing selected sections from messages. This must be done through the browser view. In the message, select the section that you want to print. Expand your Office skills.
