

Chapter 1 : Leo Tolstoy (+ Sourced Quotes) - Lib Quotes

Leo Tolstoy Growth, Present, Desire, Only, Must, Our In all history there is no war which was not hatched by the governments, the governments alone, independent of the interests of the people, to whom war is always pernicious even when successful.

The two most powerful warriors are patience and time. Leo Tolstoy 27 15 3 A writer is dear and necessary for us only in the measure of which he reveals to us the inner workings of his very soul. Leo Tolstoy 28 15 3 Man lives consciously for himself, but is an unconscious instrument in the attainment of the historic, universal, aims of humanity. Leo Tolstoy 29 13 2 The best generals I have known were Not only does a good army commander not need any special qualities, on the contrary he needs the absence of the highest and best human attributes -- love, poetry, tenderness, and philosophic inquiring doubt. He should be limited, firmly convinced that what he is doing is very important otherwise he will not have sufficient patience , and only then will he be a brave leader. God forbid that he should be humane, should love, or pity, or think of what is just and unjust. Leo Tolstoy 30 6 0 michaelj72 added There is only one way to put an end to evil, and that is to do good for evil. But deeds you can do quite unknown to men, only for God. And such deeds are the greatest joy that a man can experience. Leo Tolstoy 32 13 3 Hypocrisy in anything whatever may deceive the cleverest and most penetrating man, but the least wide-awake of children recognizes it, and is revolted by it, however ingeniously it may be disguised. Leo Tolstoy 33 10 1 He never chooses an opinion, he just wears whatever happens to be in style. Leo Tolstoy 34 11 2 True science investigates and brings to human perception such truths and such knowledge as the people of a given time and society consider most important. Art transmits these truths from the region of perception to the region of emotion. Leo Tolstoy 35 8 1 In historic events, the so-called great men are labels giving names to events, and like labels they have but the smallest connection with the event itself. Every act of theirs, which appears to them an act of their own will, is in an historical sense involuntary and is related to the whole course of history and predestined from eternity. Leo Tolstoy 36 8 1 The sobs and tears of joy he had not foreseen rose with such force within him that his whole body shook and for a long time prevented him from speaking. Falling on his knees by her bed. Leo Tolstoy 37 But the peasants -- how do the peasants die? Leo Tolstoy 38 11 4 The changes in our life must come from the impossibility to live otherwise than according to the demands of our conscience not from our mental resolution to try a new form of life. Leo Tolstoy 39 7 1 In quiet and untroubled times it seems to every administrator that it is only by his efforts that the whole population under his rule is kept going, and in this consciousness of being indispensable every administrator finds the chief reward of his labor and efforts. While the sea of history remains calm the ruler-administrator in his frail bark, holding on with a boat hook to the ship of the people and himself moving, naturally imagines that his efforts move the ship he is holding on to. But as soon as a storm arises and the sea begins to heave and the ship to move, such a delusion is no longer possible. The ship moves independently with its own enormous motion, the boat hook no longer reaches the moving vessel, and suddenly the administrator, instead of appearing a ruler and a source of power, becomes an insignificant, useless, feeble man. Leo Tolstoy 40 7 1 michaelj72 added Truth, like gold, is to be obtained not by its growth, but by washing away from it all that is not gold.

Chapter 2 : Leo Tolstoy - quotes

"A Calendar of Wisdom" by Leo Tolstoy, translated by P. Sekirin, (November 26), 96 Copy quote When you love someone, you love the person as they are, and not as you'd like them to be.

After his parents died during his childhood, [14] Tolstoy and his siblings were brought up by relatives. His time there was not a success however, with teachers describing him as "both unable and unwilling to learn. Tolstoy served as a young artillery officer during the Crimean War and was in Sevastopol during the month-long siege of Sevastopol in 1855, [15] including the Battle of the Chernaya. During the war he was recognised for his bravery and courage and promoted to lieutenant. During his visit, Tolstoy witnessed a public execution in Paris, a traumatic experience that would mark the rest of his life. Writing in a letter to his friend Vasily Botkin: Henceforth, I shall never serve any government anywhere. However, as a direct forerunner to A. Personal life The death of his brother Nikolay in had an impact on Tolstoy, and led him to a desire to marry. She was called Sonya, the Russian diminutive of Sofia, by her family and friends. Sonya was copying and handwriting his epic works time after time. Tolstoy would continue editing War and Peace and had to have clean final drafts to be delivered to the publisher. Tolstoy was one of the unhappiest in literary history. This saw him seeking to reject his inherited and earned wealth, including the renunciation of the copyrights on his earlier works. Among them are Swedish jazz singer Viktoria Tolstoy and the Swedish landowner Christopher Paus, whose family owns the major estate Herresta outside Stockholm. They retain their relevance as accounts of the universal story of growing up. Tolstoy served as a second lieutenant in an artillery regiment during the Crimean War , recounted in his Sevastopol Sketches. His experiences in battle helped stir his subsequent pacifism and gave him material for realistic depiction of the horrors of war in his later work. Anna Karenina tells parallel stories of an adulterous woman trapped by the conventions and falsities of society and of a philosophical landowner much like Tolstoy , who works alongside the peasants in the fields and seeks to reform their lives. Tolstoy not only drew from his own life experiences but also created characters in his own image, such as Pierre Bezukhov and Prince Andrei in War and Peace, Levin in Anna Karenina and to some extent, Prince Nekhlyudov in Resurrection. Its vast canvas includes characters, many historical with others fictional. The story moves from family life to the headquarters of Napoleon , from the court of Alexander I of Russia to the battlefields of Austerlitz and Borodino. Somewhat surprisingly, Tolstoy did not consider War and Peace to be a novel nor did he consider many of the great Russian fictions written at that time to be novels. This view becomes less surprising if one considers that Tolstoy was a novelist of the realist school who considered the novel to be a framework for the examination of social and political issues in nineteenth-century life. Tolstoy thought that Anna Karenina was his first true novel. Tolstoy also explores and explains the economic philosophy of Georgism , of which he had become a very strong advocate towards the end of his life. Tolstoy also tried himself in poetry with several soldier songs written during his military service and fairy tales in verse such as Volga-bogatyr and Oaf stylized as national folk songs. They were written between and for his Russian Book for Reading, a collection of short stories in four volumes total of stories in various genres published along with the New Azbuka textbook and addressed to schoolchildren. Nevertheless, he was skeptical about poetry as a genre. As he famously said, "Writing poetry is like ploughing and dancing at the same time". According to Valentin Bulgakov , he criticised poets, including Alexander Pushkin , for their "false" epithets used "simply to make it rhyme". Fyodor Dostoyevsky thought him the greatest of all living novelists. Gustave Flaubert , on reading a translation of War and Peace, exclaimed, "What an artist and what a psychologist! What he does serves to justify all the hopes and aspirations invested in literature. Arthur Conan Doyle wrote "I am attracted by his earnestness and by his power of detail, but I am repelled by his looseness of construction and by his unreasonable and impracticable mysticism. Religious and political beliefs.

quotes from Leo Tolstoy: 'Everyone thinks of changing the world, but no one thinks of changing himself.', 'All happy families are alike; each unhappy family is unhappy in its own way.', and 'If you look for perfection, you'll never be content.'

Comments Leo Tolstoy one of the greatest novelists of the 19th century. There is something in the human spirit that will survive and prevail, there is a tiny and brilliant light burning in the heart of man that will not go out no matter how dark the world becomes. If you want to be happy, be. The two most powerful warriors are patience and time. Just as one candle lights another and can light thousands of other candles, so one heart illuminates another heart and can illuminate thousands of other hearts. Truth, like gold, is to be obtained not by its growth, but by washing away from it all that is not gold. Life could be limitless joy, if we would only take it for what it is, in the way it is given to us. A truly wise man is always joyful. Pay bad people with your goodness; fight their hatred with you kindness. Even if you do not achieve victory over other people, you will conquer yourself. The sole meaning of life is to serve humanity. Seize the moments of happiness, love and be loved! That is the only reality in the world, all else is folly. It is the one thing we are interested in here. You see, if you take pains and learn in order to get a reward, the work will seem hard; but when you work if you love your work, you will find your reward in that. Freethinkers are those who are willing to use their minds without prejudice and without fearing to understand things that clash with their own customs, privileges, or beliefs. This state of mind is not common, but it is essential for right thinking. Happiness does not depend on outward things, but on the way we see them. If, then, I were asked for the most important advice I could give, that which I considered to be the most useful to the men of our century, I should simply say: We can know only that we know nothing. And that is the highest degree of human wisdom. Wrong does not cease to be wrong because the majority share in it. True life is lived when tiny changes occur.
