Vocabulary and Language in These Beautiful Kindergarten Stories You can see examples of the pictures from the different stories below, as well as the language that will be learned and reviewed from that story. Then the frogs become cold and jump out again. Children love pretending to be the frogs and this story is easy to put on as part of a show to parents at the end of a term. Some verbs are revised from previous stories such as jump, eat and swim. The pictures are dark, shadowy and mysterious as the battle rages in all the different rooms. The cowboy and indian are hidden in each picture so your preschool children can have fun finding them. Then mother calls and the cowboys and indians turn out to be two friends, and the story ends with the two boys having tea together in the light kitchen with chocolate cake. Oh yes I can! There are some really fun games in the mini-lesson plans that you can play with those phrases, especially if you have some space. This story has a sweet ending with cat and mouse on the sofa together. Each story builds on the previous ones so the young children repeatedly hear the same words and remember them. New words and phrases are also introduced. The present is a train and some track. Archie loves his train set and builds it right through the entire house The mini-lesson plans have fun vocabulary games for giving and for train. Family members and rooms of the house are revised, as one simply cannot do enough reviewing with young English language learners. New vocabulary includes words from nature such as the sea, the beach, the desert, mountain and snow. Other vocabulary is revised from previous stories including sand, field, green, garden, flowers and pond. See A4 size picture. These can be replaced by simple numbers 1 to 5 if that is more appropriate for your pupils. The words dark and light are revised and the question How many? The animals are all sleeping in the dark fields and numbers are revised as your pupils count up all the different animals. In the final picture family members are revised again when you meet the mouse family who are the only animals wide awake and mother mouse is reading a story in the light of the moon. Thomas loves to play his video game and keeps doing crazy things like falling in a hole, or a pond, or walking into a lamp post. Each time his mother has to bandage up a body part. Then he feels much better. Eventually Thomas sees his friends running and he cannot join in as he has so many bandages, so he throws his game away while his mother reads him a story. New body parts are introduced and the body parts from the previous story are revised as the the animals all want a bandage too. Mother comes in so they hide and the children can spot them hidden in the picture. The pre-story and post-story ideas contain ideas that children love with games from the ebook that you have. Cat and Mouse from story 13 wish they could be a pirate and a princess. A fairy appears and gives them different items of clothing so at the end they are dressed up as a princess and a pirate. The stories on their own are really lovely, and they all have adorable characters or a cute twist at the end that appeals to preschoolers, and adults too for that matter! Many teachers have told me they find my resources excellent value and this next series of stories 11 to 20 is equally good value for money, especially given that this series contains even more pictures. There are over one hundred full colour story illustrations, plus 66 colour flashcards. I prefer teachers to find my resources affordable and worthwhile, particularly as many of you live in countries where wages are lower than in Western Europe. Therefore I am offering you stories 11 to 20, plus all the extras, today for under 3 euros per story 29 euros. Considering each story will keep your young pupils busy for many happy hours of fun learning, this is unequivocally great value. All 3 currencies are proposed on the secure order page.
